Handicapped in Bethel find many doors hard to open

Often forced to rely on the kindness of

By ALISON ALOISIO

Lyn Hutchins of Bethel recently became dependent on a scooter chair to get around Main Street. And it's opening her eyes to the barriers handicapped people face in Bethel Village.

"Every healthy person should try being in a wheelchair for a day to see what it's like," she said.

Hutchins, who has multiple sclerosis, is slowly losing the use of her legs. A former branch officer of Key Bank, she had to stop working about two years ago. She has just started to use the scooter regularly to travel from her Chapman Street house to Main Street. "This is all new to me," she said.

While many businesses comply with Americans with Disabilities Act requirements by providing ramps, their doors are still closed — literally — to people like Hutchins.

The problem: it is very difficult, if not impossible, for someone in a wheelchair to open many of the heavy business doors. Hutchins is dependent on helpful customers or alert employees to get in most entryways.

"You take your chances, and you may get in," she said.

Most of the time that happens. But, she said, "I like to do things myself," and having to wait for someone to come to her aid leaves her with a helpless feeling.

Hutchins wishes the businesses would install electronic door openers operated by a push button, like one that has been in place for many years at Northeast Bank. (Such doors, which can be expensive, are not required by ADA law.)

At Northeast, manager Anita Remington said she estimates about one percent of customers need the button, and use it. Others sometimes use it for convenience, because the door is a heavy one even for relatively healthy people. Remington said she knew of one wheelchair-bound customer who uses the door, but that person does not come in on a regular basis.

Other businesses that are easy to access are the Bethel Foodliner and

Some in Andover mourn felling of tall pines

By ALISON ALOISIO

For some Andover residents, including Wendy Green, it's a sad end for some grand old trees.

For Brian Mills, it's a good example of why people should attend Town Meeting.

Green is mourning the recent cutting of a half dozen old pines on the town's Grimaldi property. She's also blaming herself as much as anyone for the loss.

The trees, which line Route 120 just beyond the Town Hall, came down legitimately, as the result of a 1998 Town Meeting vote. The plan is to use the lumber from the huge 'None of them were at the Recreation Committee meetings, the Budget Committee meetings or the Town Meeting.'

BRIAN MILLS

pinos to construct a multi-purpose building on the site. The 37-acre property was acquired for recreational purposes several years ago.

Green objected during the 1998 meeting to cutting all the trees, citing their aesthetic value. A majority, however, favored using them toward the building.

Last week, all the big trees came down — and some townspeople reacted with shock, according to Green.

"There are people who take a walk down here who can't even take this walk anymore," said Green. "It will be a long time before they can walk it again."

Now, she wishes she had raised a louder voice in opposition both at and after the Town Meeting. Green also serves as selectman in Andover.

Greenwood planners put Pats lineman's plan on hold

Board members walk; Max Lane waits

By MICHAEL DANIELS

If it had happened on the ball field, they would have at least been called for delay of game.

Five members of the Greenwood Planning Board have successfully blocked, at least for the moment, New England Patriot lineman Max Lane's attempt to build a home on South Pond.

The Planning Board members opted to quit the field prior to Monday's regularly scheduled board meeting. Instead of convening for the meeting, the board members showed up an hour early, held an unannounced meeting (Maine law requires that at a minimum in such situations the press be notified ahead of time), drafted a letter of resignation, and left.

When local real estate broker Dotty Duddy, who is representing Lane, arrived for a scheduled appointment with the board, the meeting room was empty.

Duddy said she arrived Monday expecting to simply finish off the approval process for the home Lane and his wife hope to build.

"I was astonished, and embarrassed for the town," Duddy said.

"Max wants to build in an established subdivision. We've done all the paperwork, the site walk, and the contractor was here Monday with me. There are no problems I know of with the application. But the Planning Board had vanished."

In their letter to the town, the planners gave no reason for their resignation, but the move was not unexpected. At Greenwood's annual Town Meeting on March 25 voters had cut back stipends for Planning Board members by $300 each and had eliminated the additional $7.50 an hour they received for meetings lasting longer than two hours.

Prior to the cuts the chairman of the Greenwood Planning Board received a stipend of $950 a year, regular members received $800, and alternates $650. Even with the cuts, Greenwood board members are among the highest paid in The Citizen's circulation area, where most Planning Board members are either unpaid volunteers or are paid

Appeals Board OK's Hudson Hill garage plan

By MICHAEL DANIELS

If no unforeseen monkey-wrenches are thrown into the situation, Dwayne Bennett will be able to build his auto repair garage off Route 26 on Hudson Hill.

The Bethel Board of Appeals last week overruled the town Planning Board's decision to reject Bennett's site plan application.

The vote by the five-member Appeals Board was unanimous.

The Planning Board last month rejected Bennett's application, based on the conviction of some members that the driveway needed to access the proposed garage would be unsafe.

The problem was limited visibility, especially for westbound vehicles cresting a hill just above the proposed driveway location.

However, the actual visibility from the driveway would be 650 feet, well over the 500 feet required by state and town regulations.

A majority of the Planning Board nonetheless felt that in this situation the requirement was insufficient.

Stan Howe was one of the Planning Board members to vote against Bennett's application. He told the Appeals Board he and others were especially concerned that when a vehicle was waiting in the westbound lane to enter the driveway, vehicles backed up behind it would be increasingly close to the crest of the hill and would not be sufficiently visible to others approaching from behind them.

"I could not justify that entrance to that business with those circumstances in mind," he said, "and I just hope if this does get overturned we don't live to regret it."

But others argued the Planning Board had overreached its authority in not applying the town's regulations as written.

"As I understand it the Planning Board has elected not to follow the ordinance that was enacted by the citizens of Bethel," said attorney Mike O'Donnell. "They simply can't do that; they must follow the law."

Bethel's summer season promises a fulfilling feast of festivals

Score another first for Bethel. In a move that is the envy of scores of "traditional New England villages," across the North Country, promoters here have successfully "themed" every weekend during the upcoming summer's high season.

The state's weekend festivals for 2000 were announced Saturday at the annual meeting of the Maine Boosters Bureau. Bethel's program was immediately hailed as a breakthrough, out-of-the-box move that raises the bar for promotional hustle in any village hoping to defend a competitive market share during the crucial summer tourism season.

From July 4th until Labor Day, Bethel visitors and residents alike will be able to enjoy an unbroken marathon of really "unique and special" weekend festivities — each value-added event offering yet another reason to come to the village, appreciate Main Street, and spend money.

Make your plans and reservations now — the town will be filling up fast. Here's the summer line-up as it looks at press time. As always, check the current edition of The Bethel Citizen for up-to-the-minute details.

Take Us for Granite Fest — July 8-9 Hey, the live-free-or-die crowd doesn't have a copyright on the stuff, right? A salute to the rocks that shape our land, our communities and our character. Roundtable gabfest by flinty oldtimers. Demonstrations of the fun things that can be done with radon gas. Music by Bedrock.

Wife-throwing Fest — Mollycodd Day A chance to have a real fling with your spouse. Bethel's summer version of a traditional Finnish fertility rite. Late each winter, when the boreal days are finally growing longer, Finnish husbands build a meter-high pile of soft snow near the sauna. Then husband and wife strip, sauna, sip and skol together until the proper internal temperatures are reached. At that point the husband picks up the wife, dashes outside and tosses her onto the snow pile. Then he joins her. Children of such couplings are thought to grow up blonder, taller and to be natural-born Tango-nistas. Since Bethel no longer has snow after February, let alone in July, huddies here will hurl their honeys into the warm, silty-soft waters of the Bethel Station retention pond. If you plan to train for the event, bear in mind that all hurlers must develop the Big Mo with a standard four-step approach, and the heave-ho must be a straight, two-handed overhead push (no "hammer-throw" spinning allowed). Winning couple receives the wife's weight in Absolut or Advil.

IT'S TOO LATE NOW

To the Editor:

Yes, it's too late. How does it feel to know that anything one does to get them back is too late? Sickening. Time has the power to change all that exists back to dust. What is this unseen force that can shape the land and our lives? Time is too slow for some and too quick for others. When the balance between the physical and spiritual aspects of life is suddenly altered by cutting the scenic cathedral trees that, just the other day, graced our roadside along the recreational area, (in a moment) were slaughtered, one tends to wake up. Did we think it through? Did we draw enough from the public voice? Did we say "no" effectively? Did we even think we had to worry about anyone here compromising the aesthetic quality of our road? The answer to all of these questions is no. No, we did not.

In the 1998 Town Meeting, Article 59 was passed for the approval of the preliminary plan, which stated that the large growth along the road would be cut (see page 66). The pine would be hauled to a local sawmill where it would be sawed into lumber to build the multi-use building planned for the recreational area (if the floodplain permits). Many people said to leave the healthy tall pines. They said that those trees are part of their pleasure as they walk by daily. The young adults are shaken. Did we say "no" loudly enough? No, I think what measures I could have taken but now it's too late. I was told that only the weed trees were being cut right now and that the big trees were too dangerous to do.

The aesthetic quality has been reduced by drastic measure. What happened to "let's see what it looks like with just the weeds gone?" Or "Do we want to compromise the lives and beauty of these trees to equate lumber for some stupid building?"

We want to blame someone for this. We want a channel to vent our anger, pain and shock. I have to blame myself. I could have done more. We are told, "Hey, you voted it in. We may have, but where does that leave us now?"

If one walks the lot, it can be seen that we have a strong section of wood already there. One may have to look hard, walk far to be graced in their shade, but they're there ... somewhere. Shame on those who hasten to have their way and who work single-mindedly and shrug their shoulders saying the rest of us will get over it.

When is this weary mind set to change?

COMPROMISE ON STREET CLEANUP

To the Editor:

In response to recent letters from some regarding street cleanup, I would like to make some comments from the other side.

First, I resent the implication in one of the letters that only non-natives are the folks who want the crew to do cleanup at a more reasonable hour. I was born and raised here, lived in West Bethel for 23 years and on Main Street for 17.

Inasmuch as anyone benefits by having the streets cleaned up promptly, I live on Main Street and I own a business there as well. I definitely need to have the cleanup done.

My main reason for wanting it done at a reasonable time is small children who go to school. Having their sleep disturbed between 2 and 4 a.m. is not good on a regular basis, and since our storms seem to all come one right after the other, that means cleanup will, too. That can make for some really tired kids, not to mention adults. I also feel some sympathy for all the inns and motels and their guests as well.

Since it seems a compromise is needed in order to get the streets cleaned in a timely manner, I suggest the following. How about doing cleanup between 7 and 11 p.m.? That would be far less disturbing to everyone than 2 a.m. Maybe they could even split it up — do some in the evening and finish up in the 5 a.m. time range. Let's compromise and get the streets clear for everyone.

REMEMBERING ALBERT JUDKINS

To the Editor:

The Bethel Historical Society has lost a valued member with the death last week of Albert Judkins, who was a life member of the organization. Even though he lived more than 30 miles away in Peru, few members were as loyal in attendance at lectures and events than Albert. Although his hearing was seriously impaired, he usually came early and set up his hearing device so that he would not miss anything. His interest in the past was strong; he continued to be one of the most enthusiastic attendees at society gatherings.

Invariably friendly and cheerful, he was always willing to offer assistance in setting up for various functions and was a generous donor, contributing much of his library of local and regional books to the society. He also spent countless hours in the society's research library investigating the history of his beloved Upton.

When we held our oral history night on World War II in 1995 in observance of the 50th anniversary of the war's end, he was a member of the panel and related some of his experiences in the Southeast Asian Theater of the war. Later when we held another oral history session on the regional writer Louise Dickinson Rich, he recalled his memories of Mrs. Rich.

In regard to Mrs. Rich, Albert was immortalized in one of her books, "Happy the Land." At a dance in the Grange Hall, a visiting lumberjack took a drink of rum in the middle of the dance floor. Witnessing this break with the rules, the tee-totaling constable broke a chair over his head, which led to a fistfight. Seeing what was happening and recalling what occurred in Western movies when a fight began, Albert turned on the lights. According to Mrs. Rich, this prolonged the conflict and made it much worse than it would have been since no one could see who was hitting whom. I asked Albert about this one time; he was none too happy that what he had hoped would end the situation had had the opposite effect. To make matters worse, Mrs. Rich had included it in her book for all to read.

Albert might more appropriately be remembered for all his volunteer work with the community, his church, and veterans. He was extremely generous with his time and many benefited from his efforts. We will miss him at the society, and I believe those whose lives were made richer because of his interest and caring will remember him fondly for many years to come.

INVEST IN A FINE PROGRAM

To the Editor:

The American Legion is a nonprofit service organization dedicated to serve the community and provide programs to enhance the young people in the community. The American Legion Baseball Program is the most successful of these community-based programs.

The goal of the American Legion Baseball Program is to socially develop young men and women in a better understanding of the American way of life and to promote 100 percent Americanism, to instill a sincere desire to develop within themselves a sense of citizenship, sportsmanship, loyalty and team spirit, to aid in the improvement and development of physical fitness, and to build our nation's future through our young people.

As coach for the past two seasons, I have witnessed area young men develop the athletic and social skills to guide them into the educational arena and the community workforce. The players from both SAD44 and Gould Academy are not only active on the playing field, but have assisted aging and disabled individuals statewide. The players carry the team and community in a proud manner by returning to assistant coach after eligibility (after age 19).

As a nonprofit organization, Jackson-Silver Post 68 depends on local support through donations. The operating expenses for the summer program (24 games) is between $5,000 and $7,000 a year, and to continue this outstanding program we are asking the area merchants and community members for financial support. To invest in our communities' young people's future, send a donation today to: American Legion Baseball Program, Jackson-Silver 68, P.O. Box 178, Locke Mills, ME 04255.

ONLY THE TRIBE WANTS HIGH-STAKES BINGO HERE

To the Editor:

Everyone who lives in the town of Bethel knows about the high-stakes bingo casino that the Passamaquoddy Indian Tribe wants to build in Albany Township outside of Bethel.

The land does belong to the Indians, but they have not registered it as theirs, and LURC made the mistake of telling them that it was land that you could build on when it is a flood zone and is flooded two to three times a year.

My opinion on the issue is that the casino should not be built. Having a casino in an area with few neighbors could cause some problems. The neighboring houses near it could have complaints of noise and other complaints about being open late at night. What if someone left the place intoxicated and got in a car accident on their way home? It is out of Bethel's jurisdiction and they would have to wait until country or state police responded.

Other opinions that I have heard from family members and others seem to have the same point of view I have. When it all comes down to it, the only people who really want the casino built are the Passamaquoddy Indians.

THE HEART TELLS WHO IS FAMILY

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the article "Families Growing Apart" in last week's issue of "The Bethel Citizen." I am not writing because I disagree with the article written by Carol Verrill of Wiscasset, because I believe that family is very important and that every generation should have a part in each life, but I also believe that a family can be made out of pure love not just the fact that there are "real relatives" to be known.

I have a strong interest in this article because I myself grew up in a family that was raised with stepiblings. I was only the age of seven when my mom, younger sister and myself married into a family that had two very young girls that were being raised by their father alone. My mom took full responsibility for these two children; cared for, nurtured and loved them like they were her own. Although our parents are no longer married, and 20 years have passed, they still call her "Mom."

We have all grown, gone our separate ways and had our own children, but still manage to keep in touch over the years. Just recently my two stepsisters moved back to town and I have to say that it has been wonderful getting to know them all over again, watching my nieces and nephews grow each day. My blood sister and myself were there to witness the birth of my stepsister's third child and right beside her again was our mom. I would like to say that unlike obituaries, when it comes to birth announcements there isn't a whole lot of room for aunts, uncles and great-grandparents, although, yes, it would be nice.

I don't believe that it is a matter of bringing children up in a life of lies or turning one's back on relatives, but it is a matter of who one's heart feels is their family, whether there is blood or not. Love is the real issue here, and we all have more love and respect for each other than most families have these days. No matter where one ends up in life, one should never turn their back on their family, real or not. Make efforts to contact children, meet grandchildren, be there to see a child graduate, or even give a daughter away at her wedding. No matter what it takes, it's a beautiful moment that shouldn't be missed by anyone, real or not.

Through it all they know who their family is, and hopefully someday we can all share the wonderful part of each thing that comes and goes from their lives, because what would this world be like if nobody loved or cared for others just because we were not all blood related. I believe that my mom is a very wonderful lady for doing what she has done for those girls and for all of us as a family, teaching us what family values are really about, and keeping us all together.

SKI2CURE THANKS

To the Editor:

I am writing to thank all the local area citizens and many from away who contributed to the "SKI2CURE" for diabetes held at Saddleback Ski Area in February. When I asked people to make donations, they didn't hesitate and gave willingly of their resources. I, and all those who have diabetes, thank everyone for their generosity. Over $16,000 was raised to help find a cure for the seventh leading cause of death in the United States.

The American Diabetes Association is committed to fighting diabetes on three fronts. First, to educate people about the disease because half of the 14 million people who have diabetes don't know it. Second, to help those who have diabetes live productive lives through proper medication, diet and exercise. Third, to fund the research necessary to find a cure. That cure is very close.

Again, my sincere thanks to all who donated.

Briefly

No news on Indian Territory bill

AUGUSTA—The Maine Legislature has yet to take formal action on L.D. 2607, a bill that would allow the Passamaquoddy Indian Tribe to add tribal-owned land in Albany Township to Indian Trust, thereby making the land eligible for the development of a high-stakes gambling facility. Local opponents of the gambling plan expect the bill to reach the floor of the Maine House of Representatives possibly as early as today (Thursday, April 6).

Special Town Meeting set

BETHEL—Town selectmen have scheduled a special Town Meeting for April 17 to seek voter approval for what officials hope will be a final financing package for renovations at the wastewater treatment plant. Articles on the warrant include appropriating $37,500 for additional engineering fees, accepting a $700,000 "rate-reduction" grant from the Maine Department of Environmental Protection, and approving a restructured loan package of approximately $1.5 million. The meeting will be held at the Crescent Park School, and will begin at 7 p.m. Next week's Bethel Citizen will look more closely at the individual warrant articles.

Town Office hours extended

GREENWOOD—Effective April 3 Town Officer hours are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 5 to 7 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month. Previously, the office had been closed on Wednesdays, but a vote at the annual Town Meeting in March to increase funding for the Town Office allowed the hours to be extended.

State postpones scenic designation

NEWRY—The state's Scenic Byway Board has postponed a decision on accepting a management plan — and allocating funding — for the Route 26 Scenic Byway corridor in Upton and Newry. A local committee met over several months to draw up a management plan to oversee the corridor, which would be extended from the current 14 miles to 22 miles. The board expressed concern over Upton's lack of a comprehensive plan with goals and objectives to address scenic and sprawl issues. It also requested "an in-depth narrative of the corridor's historic and archeological resources; their existence, their values, and how these resources will be retained and protected." The local plan stated there are no known archeological sites within the corridor, but the board said there is a high probability that such sites exist. Sylvia Gray, Newry administrative assistant and a member of the committee, said the group interpreted "archeological and historic" to mean Indian or other very old sites, rather than relatively recent buildings. After appointing a new corridor management committee, selectmen said they would request that the committee tour the road to pinpoint historic sites. The state board's decision on approving the extension was postponed until the "amended deficiencies" are submitted to the board for its approval. Appointed to the local management committee were Audrey Brooke, Bill Wight, Sylvia Gray, John Metcalfe, Mike Broderick, Brian Hanscom, Mike Hyman, Roger Wheeler and Owen Wight. Members from Upton will be Ellie LeComte, Sue Nelson, Sue Angevine and Evelyn Kinney.

Planning, recreation appts. made

NEWRY—Selectmen Tuesday made appointments to several town committees Tuesday. Norm Davis, Jim Largess and Jim Trefethen were reappointed to the Planning Board, while Bruce Pearce was reappointed as an alternate. Nancy Babcock, Carrie Sysko, Marion Sandstrom and Wendy Hanscom were appointed to the Recreation Committee.

DiCocco in Maine Times

BETHEL—Local restaurant owner Cathi DiCocco was featured last week in a Maine Times article on filmmaking in Maine. DiCocco has provided the catering for two films made in Maine, including the Myth of Fingerprints, filmed in the Bethel area in 1996, and Follow Me Outside, made in the Portland area. Income from the two jobs enabled her to open her current business, Café DiCocco.

Oxford woman charged with arson

STANDISH—A 20-year-old student from Oxford has been charged with arson in connection with a dormitory fire Monday at St. Joseph's College. Lisa Carboneau was being held without bail at the Cumberland County Jail pending a court appearance scheduled for Wednesday morning (yesterday). The 3 a.m. fire, which left 100 students homeless, was the fifth suspicious fire reported in a 72-hour period in the dorm. The Monday fire gutted the first-floor resident assistant's room, where it started. Other rooms on the same floor had smoke and water damage.

RTAC members needed

AUGUSTA—The Maine Department of Transportation is accepting applications from citizens interested in serving on the Regional Transportation Advisory Committee (RTAC7) in the Oxford, Androscoggin and Franklin County area. The committee provides MDOT with citizen input on state and regional transportation policy, and on transportation projects of major significance. RTACs advise on procedures for selecting transportation projects and identification of regional transportation needs and deficiencies. Members serve for three-year terms, and the committee meets once every two months, or more frequently if committee members decide a meeting is needed. There are currently vacancies for representatives of the Alternate Transportation Modes and Environmental/Land Use interest group categories. Applications are also welcome for possible upcoming vacancies in the Business, Municipal Official and General Public categories. An application can be obtained by calling Herb Thomson at (800) 380-7822.

Mainers' census returns

PORTLAND—Maine reached a 51 percent response rate for the 2000 census as of Sunday. The national target rate is 70 percent, while Maine's target is 63 percent. Maine had posted the second-worst initial return rate — 48 percent — in the nine-state Northeast region as of Friday. Officials said there was still time to comply, even though Friday was the deadline to fill out the questionnaires and get them in the mail. The government uses the information to apportion billions of dollars in federal funds, and to develop public policy on a range of issues.

More deer permits recommended

AUGUSTA—The Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife is proposing an increase in the number of Any-Deer permits available for hunters in the 2000 firearm season. The department recommends the issuance of 75,525 permits, or about 22,300 more than was allocated in 1999. Among the factors considered in the decision were the low doe kill and the milder winters statewide the past two years. The factors have combined for greater fawn birth and survival rates throughout the state. Public comment on the proposal is open until after May 5.

Hospice volunteers needed

LEWISTON—Androscoggin Home Health Care & Hospice is seeking people in Oxford County who are interested in becoming Hospice volunteers. The AHCH Hospice Team provides support for terminally ill patients and their families. The team works to help patients spend their last days at home with dignity and in control of their care. Volunteers are asked to make a commitment of about two to four hours per week. They provide support, rather than hands-on care. Training courses are planned for May. For more information, contact Nancy Greene at (800) 482-7412.

Access

Rite Aid, both of which have automatic doors and are on ground level.

At Rite Aid, manager Dan Trowbridge described the frequency of customers in wheelchairs as "occasional."

He said he saw more — in the form of high school students — when he managed the store in South Paris across from Oxford Hills High School.

Not even ramps

There are many businesses that don't have ramps at all (the Bethel Citizen included). ADA law requires that new buildings and those undergoing modifications be made accessible.

Hutchins said she was told by one owner of a business that had undergone renovations, but did not have a ramp, that the management would arrange to have handicapped customers carried into the building, if needed.

She said she has heard healthy people complain about the ramps and handicapped parking spots, and how it affects them. But the effect of inadequate access on those who are handicapped, said Hutchins, "should be brought out. I'd like businesses to be aware there are handicapped people out there who would love to go shopping in their store, but they don't have accessibility."

(Left) Lyn Hutchins, who has multiple sclerosis, finds it difficult to get into many Bethel businesses, including The Bethel Citizen.

Pine trees

Carol Emery is one of the walkers who used to enjoy the trees. "I used to walk by with a friend quite often," she said. "We used the trees for shade. It's upsetting."

Like Green, she wishes she had spoken out earlier against cutting all the trees. "You have to be heard or it just becomes too late," she said. Emery said she recalls that she was late arriving to the 1998 Town Meeting and therefore missed the vote on the tree article.

The Recreation Committee has overseen the clearing. Member Brian Mills is not sympathetic to those who don't like the sight of the downed trees lying beside the road.

"None of them were at the Recreation Committee meetings, the Budget Committee meetings or the Town Meeting," he said.

Green agrees with him. "It's all our (townspeople collectively) fault," she said. "I'm late. I'm kicking myself for not having this interview (with the newspaper) earlier."

Green is hoping the experience will make residents pay closer attention to what goes on in town planning. "We can't expend our energy blaming someone. It's a wakeup call," she said.

Rec Field plans

Mills said there was a lot of concern expressed by townspeople early in the planning process about the cost of setting up a recreation field. The town is saving a considerable amount of money, he said, by using volunteer labor to clear the trees and by using the lumber from them for the building.

The field will be home to a baseball diamond and skating rink. Mills is optimistic the rink will be available next winter, with ball-field work starting next summer. Also in the Grimaldi plan is a canoe ramp to the nearby Ellis River.

The multi-purpose building would, among other things, provide shelter to skaters.

Mills said the town may apply for a state recreation grant to help with the projects. Such grants can range up to $25,000, but require a 50 percent match from the town, he said.

Mills also said the long-term plan for the field includes planting shade trees. "It looks like hell for a while, then something grows eventually," he said.

Garage

Others noted the Planning Board had not long ago approved a new driveway for the Bethel Animal Hospital, where one of the sight lines was far less than at Bennett's location.

Much of the hour-long appeal hearing was spent taking input from the planners and public. (Nearly 50 people turned out for the hearing.)

Following that, the Appeals Board's own discussion of the situation was brief.

Kathy Hooke acknowledged the hill was dangerous. "We all know that," she said. "But what are you going to do about that? Are you going to say no one can ever build on that side of the road on that lot? When is it ever going to be safe to use a driveway onto that lot?"

Hooke voted to approve Bennett's appeal and direct the Planning Board to sign his application.

Voting with her were fellow board members Harry Faulkner, chairman, Francis Dumont, Wendy Gray and Lennie Shaw.

Bennett is scheduled to return to the Planning Board April 12 to have the application signed.

a flat fee of $10 an hour.

Following Monday's meeting, Al Lake, one of the members who resigned, said they planned to meet Wednesday evening to draft a letter to the town further explaining their reasons for resigning en masse.

Town Manager Carol Whitman said Wednesday that one person had stepped forward to volunteer for the Planning Board, and the town will advertise for more members.

Until a new board is appointed, she said, the selectmen have the authority to approve site plan applications, if the code enforcement officer certifies all the town's requirements have been met.

THE THREE TENORS, HUEY, DEWEY AND LOUIE, competitors in the Bethel 2000 Snowman Competition returned to the Bethel area recently for a day of skiing at the Sunday River Skiway. After the day's festivities, Huey said he hoped temperatures would remain cool enough for them to return this summer to enjoy all of Bethel's exciting festivals.

Festivals

STRAIGHT DOWN, DU KNOTKOPFI—Not everyone is enthusiastic about the proliferation of Bethel pseudofests, especially residents living near the common, where many of the events are centered. "Forget having a quiet lemonade on the side porch" said one irate Broad Street homeowner. "We might just as well set out a stand and porta-potty and make some money off this like everybody else." Having gotten an earful, town selectmen recently agreed to have another line of trees planted along the border of the common, in order to reduce noise pollution. That plan, however, has gotten off to a rocky start. "We hoped to plant a nice, fast-growing row of disease-resistant Elm, Chestnut and Oak," said Herr Doktor Hans-Peter Dieter Detweiler (left), a consultant overseeing the planting program. "But the verdammte Budget Committee said we had to make do with popple and used fir. Here Herr Doktor instructs the local help (what can you do?) on proper technique for recycling fir trees. First the bases are soaked in a special Rogaine-based formula. Then the tree is planted in a close fitting hole in frozen ground. "It is sehr wichtig that the ground is frozen," Herr Doktor stresses for those who might want to use the technique. "That way all those tiny little root hairs develop isometric strength pushing against the ice, and when it thaws — voila! the roots shoot out and grab the soil. If the ground is still frozen up in Andover, it might not be too late for us to help those folks who lost their pine trees."

The Last Round-up SUV Rally — July 29-30 Sure to be one of the highlights of the summer season, if only for this year. Thousands of suburban upmanship vehicles from all over the Northeast will arrive in Bethel for the final weekend before the mandatory federal recall of nearly all SUVs begins. This will be a "rolling recall," with SUVs over 8,000 pounds, (so-called "Excursion Class" jaugernauts, named after Ford's entry in this class) required to be off the roads by Aug. 1. (This first phase of the recall is expected to have little impact, since the Excursion was never intended to sell well and make a profit itself. Rather, it was a marketing ploy intended to provide psychological cover for potential buyers of the 6,000-pound-plus Ford Excursion — who could now say "At least I didn't buy an Excursion.") SUVs over 5,000 pounds must be gone by Jan. 1, 2001, all others over 3,500 pounds by March 31. Smaller SUVs will be allowed to stay on the road, but must be brought into compliance with automobile, rather than truck, emissions standards, and they will not be allowed to roll on oversized tires. Recalled SUVs are to be returned by dealers to the company of manufacture, which will pay owners Blue Book minus a handling-and-remanufacture fee. The SUVs will be melted down and rebuilt as environmentally friendly personal transportation vehicles for export to developing countries. (It is estimated a single Excursion Class SUV will provide enough material to build ten PTVs.) The weekend's events will take place on the SUVs' favorite habitat, parking lots, in this case at Sunday River Ski Resort. Prizes will be awarded for lowest mileage and highest hydrocarbon output in each of the three classes, as well as for the most consecutive flips in the Rollover Rally. The Last Round-up will conclude Sunday afternoon with the always popular "Heads Will Roll DeCap Derby," in which large SUVs will go bumper to windshield with normal cars filled with crash test dummies. The Last Round up is co-sponsored by the "SUV Pride Movement" and Globalath Motors, a subsidiary of OPEC, whose line of fine SUVs includes the 3,500-pound Vigor ("Put a little Vigor in your life."), the 5,200-pound Viagro ("Get it UP that hill."), and the 7,800-pound Valdese ("Tough enough for Alaska, and this time it IS double hulled."). The SUV Pride Movement, which is based in Maine, was formed in reaction to this state's decision to refuse to sell conservation license plates to owners of larger SUVs. "Seeing loon plates on those three-ton dinosaurs was like seeing billboards on Katahadin," said Gov. Angus King "And besides, SUVs scare the hell out of me when I'm out there on my Harley." At the federal level, if the SUV recall is judged a success, officials plan to next target RVs and large pickup trucks driven by anyone with soft hands.

Underwriters' Appreciation Fest — Aug. 5-6 A chance to honor those who keep Bethel businesses going — and let so many of us play at working: sugar daddies, ex-spouses paying alimony, forbearers who set up the trust funds and family businesses. Think about it, without their efforts would Bethel residents have so many intermittently fine restaurants to pick from? And let's not forget the Federal Witness Protection Program, and the unique and versatile skills of its Bethel Area placements. (Thanks to the Internet, http://www.\*\*\*\*\*.gov, we know who you are). On Saturday evening the FWPP will sponsor a Perp Walk on the common. A chance to meet the slime who did the crime and are doing their time in Bethel. Successfully identify two or more of the hooded goodfellas in the line-up and receive a prize you won't be able to refuse.

BS Appreciation Fest. — Aug. 12-13 A celebration of nearly a decade of public-private progress in BS. This event is being timed to coincide with the announcement of a major new business opening on BS land. Town and BS officials are refusing to name the new venture, but The Citizen has learned through sources who spend their weekends on the Jersey Shore that it will be a 500-square-foot Big Dan's Death Dog Stand, featuring spicy red hots with all the fixin's. Town officials have estimated (in grant applications) that the enterprise has the potential to create up to 200 new jobs, many at semi-professional levels — for example, pickling lily and scraping dried-mustard graffiti. Ceremonies will be held at Casbah Casablanca — that Morocco manqué of stucco stuck in a rolling desert of BS. Musical entertainment will include the Mahoosuc Music Makers "getting down" on their cover of ZZ Topp's "Tube Steak Boogie." (But a sad flip side to this exciting new business development: local conservationists were bitterly disappointed at word of the Jersey wiener stand. They had been attempting to negotiate an easement with BS officials so the land there could be preserved as open space. "We were relishing that possibility" said Ken Bohr, of the Mahoosuc Land Trust. "I guess you'd have to say that, for us at least, this is a classic worst-case scenario.")

A Hand for MPBN Fest. — Aug. 19-20 The all-new 52-year-a-week Public Broadcasting pledge caravan (a.k.a., "The Guilt-trip Roadshow") stops in Bethel. Give a hand to Public Broadcasting. And do they ever need one — since their own are occupied overtime rattling their tin cups and patting themselves on the back. The featured event of the weekend will be a panel of pundits discussing yet another of the crucial questions facing our state: "Which is longer, two weeks of uninterrupted primetime coverage of high school basketball, or a half-hour interview by Don Carrigan?" Protesters from Riley Township plan a counter demonstration — distributing special antenna adapters that will allow more people here to pick up WERU in Blue Hill (89.90), a real community radio station, with good old-time progressive news shows, great world music and jazz, all spiced with a healthy dollop of New Age hokey.

Book Boogerer Burning Fest — Aug. 19-20. You know how GROSS it is. You're like stretched out on the couch with a cup of tea or glass of wine, happily reading along in some escapist mystery from the library, then you turn the page and YUK! The words are smeared, maybe even stuck to the following page with like "stuff." — by some previous reader too lazy to get up and get a tissue. Well no more! Not at the Bethel Library. By combining DNA analysis with a sophisticated computer analysis of its check-out database, the library is now able to identify the sticky fingered culprits — one of whom is "picked" by lottery, arrested Saturday morning by Bethel's finest and transported (in handcuffs, a sanitary precaution) to the Bethel common. There he (a lady WOULD NEVER) is displayed in stocks until noon Sunday. Then, to the tolling of the old fire station bell, he is frog-marched by Edna "The Enforcer" York up a pile of contaminated books, tied to a stake and torched. The Library Association, which sells commemorative hankerchiefs and tissue boxes (see their tastefully small ads in the back pages of "The New Yorker") hopes the annual auto-da-fé will become a major fundraiser. The event was originally intended to begin in 1999 but was postponed due to technical difficulties. "We apologize for disappointing folks last year," said John Head, library association treasurer, "but we certainly didn't want to risk burning an innocent reader, and when the DNA guys realized the level of in-breeding here, they said they'd need another year to get us positive I.D.s."

A Taste of Leftovers. — Labor Day Weekend. Ever wonder what happens to all the food that's not sold at other fests? Great fun if you can stomach it. Catering by Riley Township's world-renowned bistro, Sam & Ella's Trotteria. The summer season's festivities will end Sunday with a subdued ceremony and postage cancellation, commemorating the town's renaming, to: "Pseudofest, Maine, a traditional New England commodity."

Christine Greenleaf and son Steven of Winthrop and Joan Ellen Wright and Erin of Standish were weekend guests of John and Arlene Greenleaf.

The Rev. and Mrs. Walter Brown, minister for the Bethel Methodist Church, have returned from their vacation in Hawaii.

Kate Nickerson and Chad Dumais spent the weekend with her parents, Daina and George Nickerson.

Kenneth and Gwyneth Bohr have returned from Washington, D.C., where they attended a presentation by their daughter, Sarah Bohr, who presented a case to U.S. Supreme Court on March 28. The case was to change the rules for appeals to Social Security disability cases. They also visited friends in the area, as this was where they had lived for many years.

Roddy Royer and family have purchased and moved to the former Wilbur Davis home on the West Bethel Flat Road.

Bill and Ki Clough are the proud grandparents of Lukas and Finn Weber, twin sons of their daughter Kaitlin and Dr. Kurt Weber of South Freeport.

Crescent Park School has been chosen as one of the top 100 wired schools in the United States. The selection was based on combination of statistical measure and progress the school has made toward staff development and training for classroom teachers.

Kate Nickerson celebrated her 20th birthday on Saturday with a dinner party at the home of her parents. Attending were Arlene Brown, Evelyn Nickerson and Daina and George Nickerson of Bethel; Kurt and Tammy Brown of Westbrook; Tammy Newton of Oxford; Chris Morris of Auburn; and Chad Dumais of Livermore.

Miss Fall, guidance counselor at Crescent Park School, reports connecting kids in areas outside school is important. It gives kids another place to have friendship and feel successful. She is compiling a list of activities kids may participate in, and she needs our help. If you know of an activity, let her know by calling her at CPS.

Nathalie Berry entertained the "Old Maid Secretaries" (her title for the group) at a dinner party Tuesday evening at her home on Lone Pine Road. Those attending were Alberta Merrill, Sylvia Harrington and Polly Davis, all retired Gould Academy secretaries.

There are several towns and communities in this wonderful country of ours that have an ordinance stating clearly that whatever your dog leaves behind during his daily walk must be immediately removed from the sidewalks, people's lawns, driveways, etc. Think about it.

The Bethel House

Ben Conant delivered the message on March 26 at Bethel Alliance and it was very nice. He has a way of making the congregation laugh, and he did it several times that day. Pastor Rick can do the same thing, too, and so could Nathan.

Ben delivered a very nice message. He said he always enjoys coming to Bethel, and we certainly enjoy having him come. Hope to see you again soon, Ben.

The Mowerys were all in church and Pastor Rick had a special song and played his guitar for the choruses. Peggy played the flute and Judy Webster was at the piano. Andrea Bennett and Lacy Phillips were down front to lead in the choruses.

We had a very nice attendance at the Bethel Alliance, too.

Frances Whitman has moved from the Bethel House. Her daughter-in-law, friend and Frances' son Tom and his wife helped Frances move on the 26th. She had been with us over two years and we shall miss her.

Brian Cook of PMV Coastal was at the Bethel House Friday on maintenance.

I hope Judy is enjoying her retirement as much as I am. She comes with Drew when he picks up the paper and they visit awhile.

A little boy was eating a pear. A friend came by and said he had just seen a rattlesnake. He told the boy he killed it, but he said watch out, as they travel in pairs. The little boy threw his pear away.

Liz Perry of PMV Coastal was at the Bethel House on Tuesday to interview some for a vacant apartment there.

Vada Glover spent the day with me Tuesday and we played 19 games of cribbage and now with 169 games in 2000, Vada is one ahead. We had a lovely boiled dinner with corned beef at the Rebel Family Restaurant in West Bethel. Custard or pumpkin pie was included with the dinner. I have eaten a lot of boiled dinners, but never have I had a better one than that at the Rebel.

Carl Brown of Howe Hill in Locke Mills, Lillian Machia of Vernon Street and myself were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Drew Webster at a lovely supper recently.

Little Claire Webster spent a short time with Grandpa and Grandma Webster while her mommy went on an errand.

Janice Hill's sister and Lorena Simmons, both of Andover, visited Janice at the Bethel House recently.

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing
I attended the Woodstock Town Meeting for the first time in many, many years. It was quite interesting and fascinating to see how small towns operate. The Union Church was approved for being taken over by the town and Mike Nadeau from South Woodstock was elected selectman for three years. All in all I enjoyed it more than I thought I would.

Tony Smith, Oxford Hills Tech School, received a silver medal for excellence in auto body. Good work, Tony.

Happy anniversary to Pete and Laurene Appleby, who celebrate on April 15.

This week has been a busy and productive week. I painted the ceiling of a bedroom two times with primer and two times with ceiling paint. It was quite a job but looks real nice now. Now I look forward to taking the wallpaper off the walls so I can redo it. I haven't had any trouble sleeping lately.

Not much news this week, haven't had time to call around to get any.

Ricky Mack has been fishing up north for a week or so.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Do you ever feel like style had no style anymore?

Remember when ladies never wore white or pastels before Easter and dark colors were reserved for after Labor Day? None of that applies anymore. All colors and styles of clothing seem pretty much acceptable on any occasion any time of the year.

Over the years think about how many times the hemline has gone up and down. Many years ago, a lady would never dream of revealing anything above her ankles; then it became nothing above mid-shin which got shortened to two inches below the knee. By my teenage years, (we won't go into just how long ago that was) mid-knee was acceptable and a few years later mid-thigh was popular.

I think it was during the mini-skirt craze that hemlines relaxed a little and one was not out of vogue wearing a skirt all the way down to the knees, which I for one was grateful. Let's face it, mid-thigh was not meant for everyone. I personally felt that I was much better off leaving some things to the imagination.

Now in the new millennium any hemline is acceptable. This is great for someone like me. Being a short person I had to hem every skirt or dress I ever bought if I wanted to be in style. Now I can just let my clothes hang where they will. It doesn't matter because everything goes.

Fashion codes were not restricted just to the ladies. The men have also been victims of what is in and what is out. Tie widths and button down collars have gone through style evolution's too. Ties have gone from wide enough to be mistaken for a vest to so narrow they just barely covered the buttons of the man's shirt. Jacket lapels went the same route and collars have run the gamut of pointed, rounded, buttoned, unbuttoned to no collar at all. Now it doesn't matter; if you like it, wear it.

Hats were at one time very fashionable both for men and women. Then going bare headed was the bold new statement. Now you can wear a hat or not, it's up to you. I like wide brimmed floppy hats when I'm working outside or when I want to annoy my family, other than that, I go bare headed.

There was a time when my mother and most women of her generation wouldn't be caught dead outside the home without a hat. Remember those crazy hats with flowers and feathers and net veils? They didn't really fit right on the head and they were kept in place with hatpins. And of course, if you wore a hat, you had to wear gloves too.

You don't see those old hats anymore and I think hatpins are probably now considered a concealed weapon. Even occasions that used to dictate certain dress codes have relaxed too. The prom, for example once demanded long taffeta gowns and white tuxedos. Though I think kids still choose gowns and tuxedos most of the time, gowns can be floor length or short and you rarely see taffeta anymore. Tuxedos can be just about any color and some young people don't feel that they have to conform to formal wear at all.

Once upon a time you would never see dark colors at a formal wedding. The bride wore white, the bride's maids wore pastels and their male counterparts wore tuxedos with cummerbunds to match the gowns. I recently saw a wedding picture in a magazine where the bride wore black and the groom wore white. Call it role reversal or call it the new millennium; either way, it's acceptable.

Though black may be okay to wear to a wedding it isn't a must to wear to a funeral anymore. It was once considered disrespectful to wear anything but subdued colors to a funeral. It used to have a black suit that I wore only to funerals. Fortunately, during the time that the suit actually fit me, I didn't have many occasions to wear it.

Now, as long as one dresses tastefully, even floral prints are not out of place in the funeral home. The deceased doesn't care what you wear; if they had their choice, they wouldn't be there at all.

More and more the funeral service is not considered a funeral service; it is a celebration of the life of the deceased. Things sure have changed.

I'm glad things have changed. I would much rather celebrate a friend or relative's life than their death and I would rather wear nice colors while I do it. And when you consider the institution of marriage, maybe it's appropriate for a bride to wear black if she wants to.

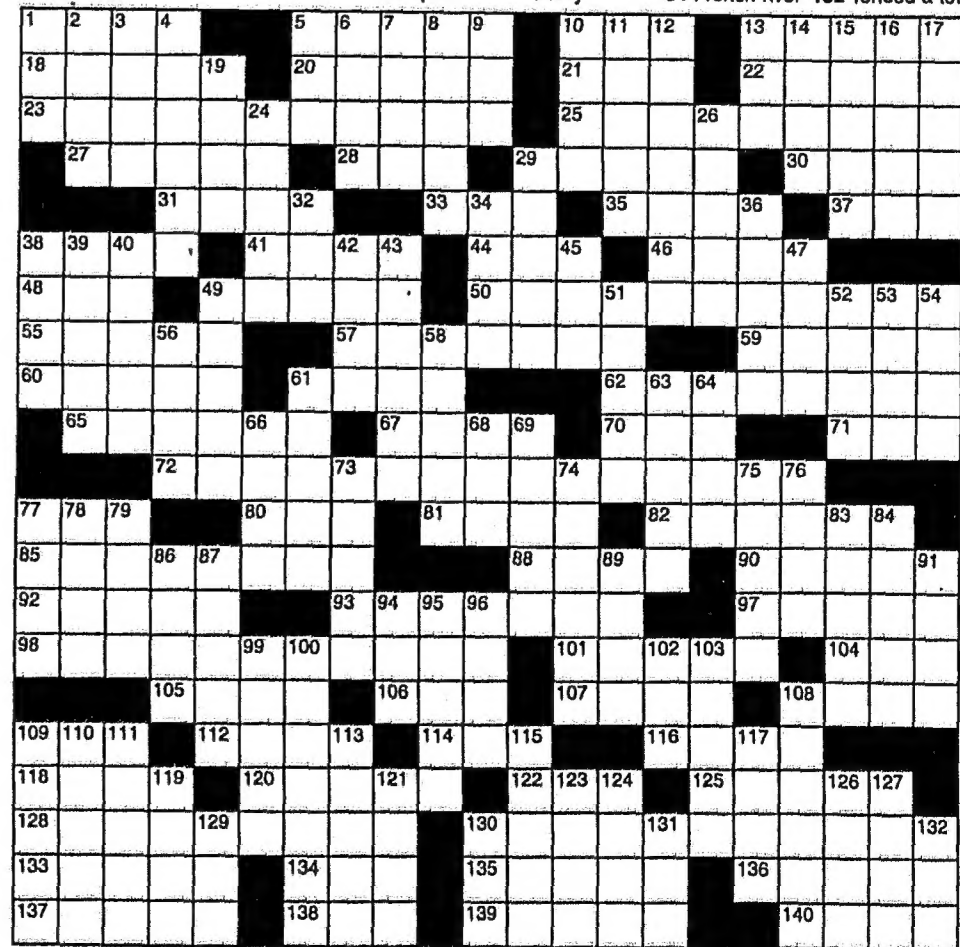

Hairstyles have eased too and I really like that. I wear my hair short because I'm basically lazy and don't want to put a lot of effort into my hairstyle. At one time I couldn't have gotten away with that without being considered goofy. I may still be considered goofy, but not because of my hairstyle.

In spite of the laissez-fair attitudes towards style, there are some things that should just remain part of our fashion history. Polyester bell-bottoms should never be worn by anyone and thank God corsets and garter belts are a thing of the past.

The way I see it, the way things are these days, if it wasn't for no style being in, there would be no style at all.

If you are interested in creatures that jump, slither, croak or swim, Penny Poor suggests going to the library and getting the book, "Maine Amphibians and Reptiles." There is a CD in the back of the book that you can listen to in the comfort of your living room.

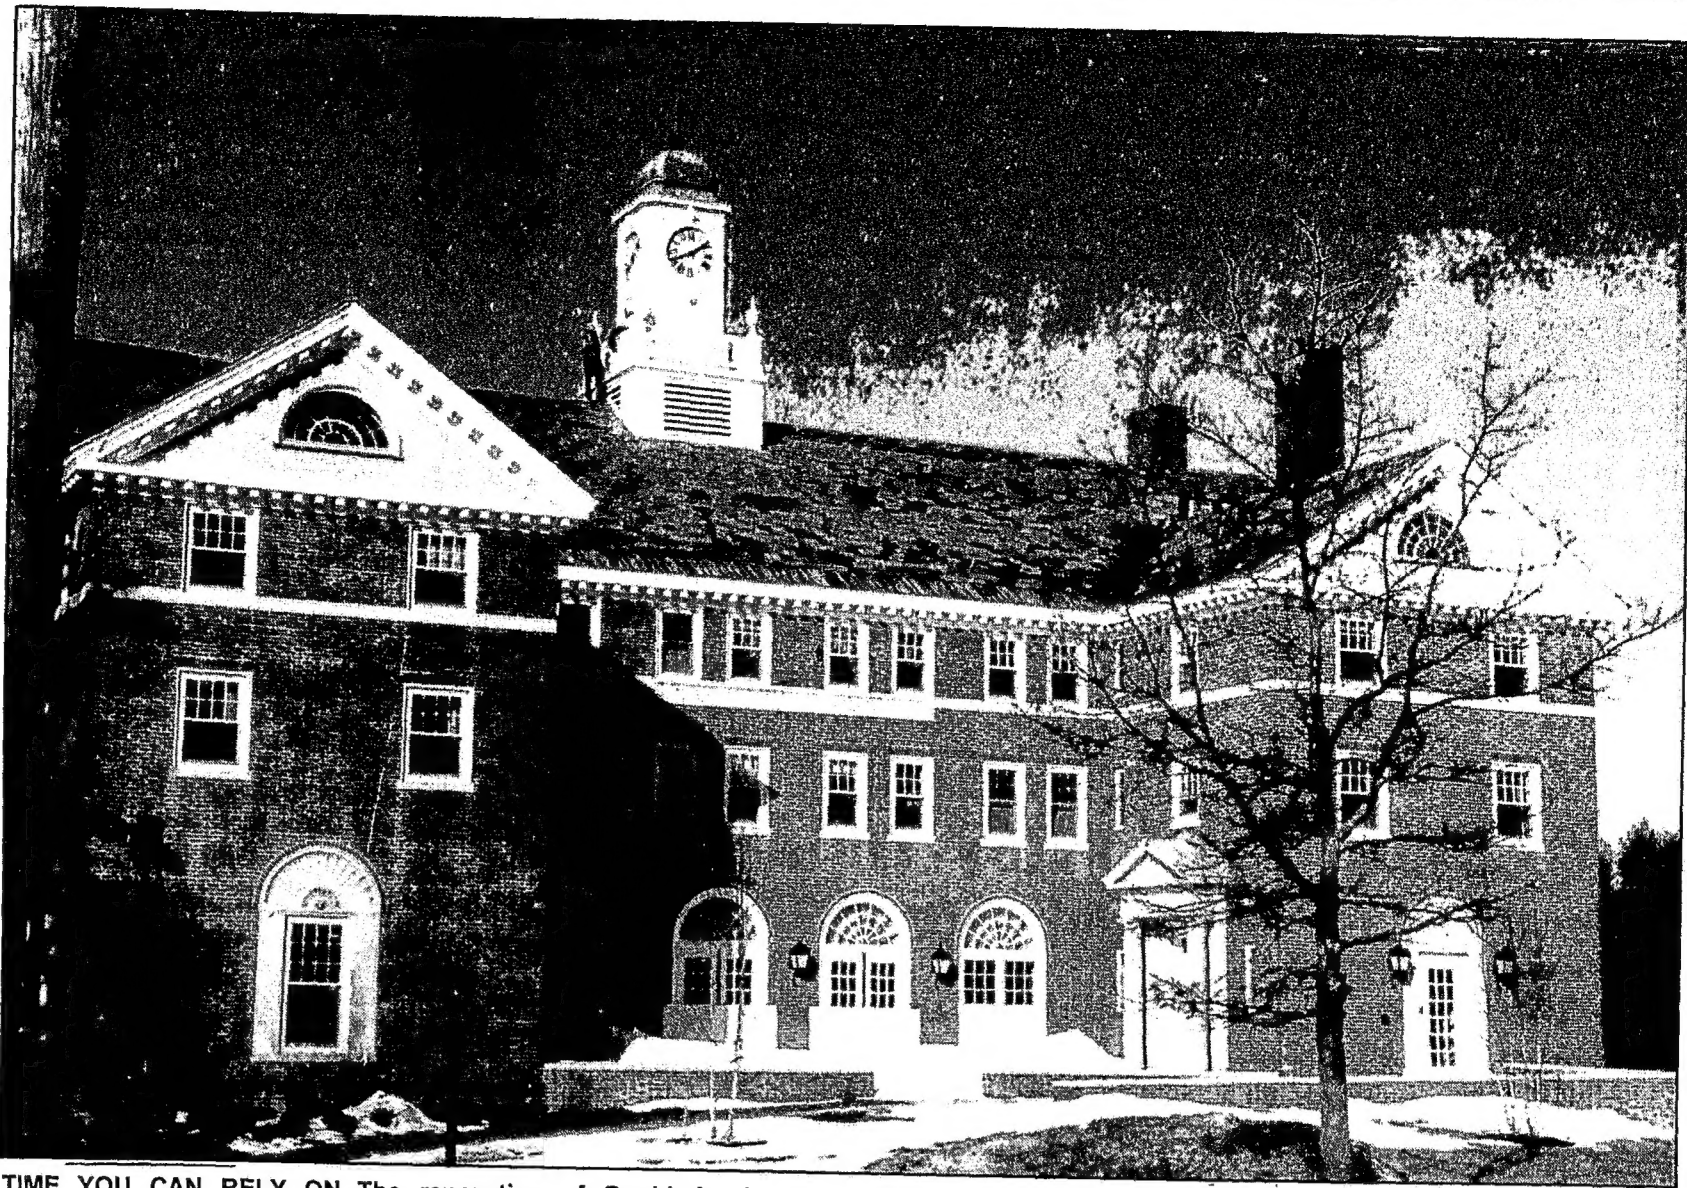

"They say that there are no rattlesnakes in Maine, but I know for a fact that there are some in New Hampshire. Can you tell me how these amazingly intelligent, slithering things know just where the state line is? Is that the same kind of knowledge that moose and deer use so that they know exactly where the moose and deer crossings are? Someone should write their dissertation on these amazing things, probably someone already has."

I like most types of dogs because of their loyalty and their habit of always accepting you as you are.

But, all dogs have a few habits that really turn me off; they don't have any "couth" at all sometimes. For example, I remember seeing on TV back in 1968 or '69 a news clip showing Queen Elizabeth in Canada, dedicating some kind of park or monument. In the clip the Queen was shown putting the final shovelful of dirt on a small tree, which was planted as part of the dedication. She had no sooner finished dedicating the tree when someone's small dog walked over, sniffed and then lifted his leg on the tree.

For some unknown reason dogs also like to camouflage their own scent. They do this by finding some of the most disgusting, rotten and stinky material they can locate and then rolling in it. Usually, it's something that has been dead for some time and that reeks to high heaven, and it is generally difficult to get rid of.

Probably their worst habit is that of eating some of the most disgusting stuff you can think of. The most recent example our dog Pooka demonstrated was last weekend. On Saturday, I cleaned up some old "compost" material in the cow pasture next to the hay crib. I then spread the compost on the flower gardens around the house, where the daffodils and tulips are coming up. Next morning, as I was doing chores in the barn, I heard Mona yelling quite vociferously and unintelligibly. This surprised me, because Mona is usually quite laid back and unexcitable. I stepped out of the barn to discover that she was yelling at Pooka. Then she hollered, "Pooka is in my flower garden, eating cow manure." Dogs!

I also had another animal adventure last Saturday. The snow was finally almost gone out of my small

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary met Monday evening at the fire station to discuss the Town Meeting dinner, a sort of debriefing to find out if there were any problems, etc. Those present were Cheryl Young, Lorraine Larson, Mary Stone, Sally Melville, Veronica Penley and Denise Swan. It was reported that the dinner netted $255. The members who worked on the dinner seem very satisfied with the working conditions and the help they received from the Legion Auxiliary. There certainly is more room than at the Town Hall and having the use of a dishwasher speeds things up considerably.

Fire Chief Raymond Seames had been invited to attend and managed to make time in his busy schedule to come and talk to us. He reported that the fire department was very pleased with the Cascade System.

Then he discussed some possible fundraisers, as the next project will probably be the expansion of the fire station. The meeting room already houses the stove, sink, counters, cupboards and refrigerator needed for the auxiliary and the office equipment for the fire department plus two tables and chairs, and both departments need more storage space. He also mentioned that if more people from the fire department did not volunteer to help move trucks and clean the bay for the Western Maine Fire Fighters Association Dinner we might have to give that up which, although we understood, wasn't exactly what we wanted to hear since it is a major fundraiser for the auxiliary. But we appreciated having him there to talk over such concerns and hope he will visit again.

I also forgot to mention that the Fire Department Auxiliary really appreciates all the help we get from the townspeople who cook and/or donate butter, milk and other items needed for these dinners. They are truly the "silent majority," for without them the dinners would not be possible. I might add that they are excellent cooks, too, and if you don't believe it come and find out for yourself at the next one.

Last Saturday, I went with Owen and Debbie Brown to the Mexico High School auditorium to join other people from the area churches for an evening of worship and prophecy ministry. Steve Bell, his wife Betsey and son John, were part of the band. Steve is a very good drummer, which I did not know even though I have known the family for several years. Wanda and Chris Shaw and Linda LaPlante from the Praise Assembly of God worship team also were there. Chris is phenomenal on one of those modern organs that bring big sound on a portable instrument and Wanda is as good a worship leader as they come. Praise Assembly is very blessed to have such a good worship team and so as not to leave out anyone, there are other members of the worship team who were not on stage, two of them being Debbie and Owen. Crystal Lake and Lorene Cobb were also at the meeting and Crystal took me home.

I'm sure if my head was only working right I could think of some other newsy bits, but I have managed to catch a spring cold. Thank God I do not have colds often, as everything that makes up me seems to go out of whack. My mind doesn't want to function (no wise comments, please), my nose forgets that there is supposed to be a passage way for air to go through, my sinuses yield quantities of unspeak-able goop, "gross, gross," my eyes feel like the proverbial two holes (actually two burnt holes) in a blanket and my throat has its own problems and resents having to serve as an airway in place of my nose. I would like to crawl into a nice, warm cave with my box of tissues and some lemonade and not come out until everything is back to as normal as I ever get. But, alas, no one has much sympathy for a sufferer of the "common cold" and I've no desire to contract something worse to get some sympathy, so I guess life marches on even if I'm a bit out of step right now.

cow pasture, and I decided to put Betsy (the mother) and Hannah (the calf) out to pasture. I put a halter on Betsy and could not budge her out of her pen in the barn, even with a dish of grain. She stood there and braced her feet. So, I fired up the Kubota tractor, hooked a chain to the winch frame and tied Betsy's halter rope to the chain. Betsy reluctantly followed the tractor out the front barn door. As soon as she was in the soft gravel driveway, she leaned way back with all four feet extended in front of her and her rear nearly on the ground, as you might see in a comic strip. She retained that position, with the tractor dragging her all the way down the driveway, leaving deep skid marks all the way. Only when she was safely in the pasture and I stopped the tractor did she relax and resume a normal cow posture.

Hi readers. I found another "fan" of my column. Sylvia and Bill Andrews were at the hospital lab where I was last week. It's always nice to meet those who read my column. Thanks for the good word.

Since writing last week, I attended the concert of Celtic music by Kevin McElroy and Alan Foss, which was held at the Charlotte Hobbs Memorial Library in Lovell Village last week. They played and sang good old Irish music. Proceeds from this program benefit the library. It was an informal family-type program and a very enjoyable time, with refreshments during the evening.

On Sunday morning, Albert and I went to Belmont, Mass., with Carole and Albert Nelson Jr. Of course we went to the Hilltop Steak House in Saugus on the way, and can you believe we went to another steak place in the evening. It was the Bugaboo Creek Steak House in Watertown, Mass., and Sharon, Jaffer and Nawal Traish went with us there.

On the way home on Monday we stopped at Sub Villa for subs and then at the Christmas Shop in Saugus, where Carole and I had fun. She got lots of things there for her shop in Rumford. What beautiful and cute things they had there. Thanks, Gene and Carole for a nice weekend.

Now to settle down and get to work. That was quite a rainstorm that we had and a lot of road washouts around. At least we didn't lose our electric power here.

March went out like a lion last week. Tuesday's torrential rain caused washouts on some of the roads. Back Street got its share as usual. Mill Road was saved by the fast action of Earl Lagesse, the road commissioner. Stoney Brook opened, overflowing onto the Lake giving it the appearance of "Ice Out." No such luck. The water just siphoned off under the ice leaving huge blocks of ice everywhere. The Dead Cambridge is still roaring down as it has done since the beginning of time in the spring. Route 26 was also subjected to washouts. Pete McCullough's van was hung up over a washout at the end of his driveway. On Monday of this week, the Eames Garage crew arrived early, complete with grader and seven or eight loads of gravel to replace what was lost on Mill Road. Gene Wixom also came to the aid of the Nelsons, using his loader to shore up the road around their mailbox.

After the storm the deer herd diminished by over 80 percent. The roaring river and the holes in the ice sent them back into the forest where they belong. After the storm, many birds returned to the area and a few new ones found the feeders. Larry Nelson spotted a hen turkey out on the ice. The Monroes and the Stanczyks have a new guest at their feeder — a tom turkey. Joy Yarnell had a visiting tree sparrow. The geese and the ducks came back to the lakeshore, prepared for another season of lawn decoration. The most unusual bird sighting was Someone saw a pileated woodpecker, but I can't remember who. Upton is definitely for the birds.

Lucille Lagesse attended a Quilting Seminar over the weekend at the Red Jacket Inn in North Conway. Her special interest was Landscape Quilting and, as she states, she learned a lot.

The Wixoms and Kenneys attended the Sportsman's Show in Augusta on Saturday.

A retirement party for Liz Stanczyk was held at the Country Club in Colebrook. It must have been a great time, since the next day there were about 50 colored balloons tied to her porch rail. The guests were served prime rib. Dancing and entertainment followed the dinner.

The Ladies Aid met on Tuesday for a craft session, in preparation for a summer fair.

There is so much "stuff" emerging from the snow, making everyone wanting to pile it up and burn it off. Burn permits are being issued to the applicants at the discretion of the temporary fire warden, Roger Lavalley. Most permits will be issued for burning after 5 p.m. when the wind dies down, lessening the fire danger.

Sunday, the Wixoms and yours truly went to the Casablanca to see Erin Brocovich. It was a good movie. The language was rather colorful, but the story line was fine. While there I met an old friend, Jan Schwin. We did private duty nursing together in Andover many years ago. We agreed that it was one of the happiest times of our lives, working for the Pratt family.

The bird of the week is the "Filly-Loo Bird". I'll bet you can't find that one in your Audubon Bird Book.

Ups and downs are par for the course when it comes to technology stocks. That's why an investment in a technology fund is a long-term proposition, designed for individuals who are comfortable with the price fluctuations associated with more aggressive investments. Many thanks to Melissa Bailey, a Telstar Regional High School junior, who spent her Career Week with the staff of the chamber and did a fabulous job. Also, sincere thanks to Nancy Fox, who helped us fold and collate the April newsletter this past Saturday. And finally, when Executive Director, Robin Zinchuk was on the Bethel Common last week cleaning up the extension cords and holiday lights from the trees, a wonderful young man named Tim Hebert offered to help. Tim did at least half the work and was a "godsend." Thanks, Tim. Keep up the good work.

The chamber is pleased to announce that Congressman John Baldacci has agreed to be our guest speaker at our 31st annual Awards Dinner on Saturday, May 20, at the Grand Summit Hotel at Sunday River. A letter of nomination should come to the chamber by the end of next week (April 14.)

BOSTON BOUND

Joe Gaidis of Gaidis Auction Co. came up with an idea late last year to help along fundraising for the Woodstock Elementary School's Fifth Grade trip to Boston. Gaidis offered his inventory of "garden angels" and "wall pockets" – fashioned out of old metal syrup buckets from Quebec – to sell, with proceeds going to the trip. Parents and other volunteers pitched in to help. The result: $810 raised, and still growing. Add that amount to other funds raised through 50/50 raffles, suppers and other events, and a grand total of $3,189 has been raised. Gaidis said the fundraising will continue, to help purchase T-shirts for the fifth-graders. On April 30, a "Basket Bingo" will take place at the Jackson Silver American Legion Post in Locke Mills, beginning at 1 p.m. (doors open at noon). Baskets, again donated by Gaidis, will be offered as game prizes and door prizes. For more information about any of the fundraisers, or to purchase an item call 674-3698. Pictured here with some of the items sold are fifth-graders (front) Kara Thurlow, Albert Curtis, Kaleb Hayes, Heather York, Randi Mack, Kayla Fitzmorris; back, Chelsea Brown, Josh McDonnell, Braydon Jackson, Kevin Gallagher, Kenneth Rand, Bill Demarest, Mike Wiggins and Josh Campbell. ## Sysko, Dumont win in boarding, freestyle events

It was a good weekend for area freestyle skiers and snowboarders.

Dustin Sysko, a Newry native, won the giant slalom race this past weekend at the U.S. Amateur Snowboarding Association National Championships in Waterville Valley, N.H.

Sysko beat 21 other boarders in the senior men's division. Competitors qualified for the championships based on race results over the season.

Sysko, 23, qualified as the number one seed out of Copper Mountain, Colo. He began snowboarding early in his high school career, and did not board competitively until January of this year.

He is a student at the Colorado

School of Design, where he will earn a B.S. degree this spring.

Thirteen-year-old Simon Dumont of Bethel also had a good weekend. Competing in Sunday River's Bust 'n Burn moguls event, Dumont was the first freestyler – amateur or professional – in the history of the race to successfully complete a "1080" maneuver. Launching himself off one of two jumps on the course, he completed three, 360-degree turns in the air before landing safely and continuing down the course.

Dumont received the Biggest Trick award (complete with a free plane ticket to anywhere in the United States and a new freestyle ski suit).

Telstar Region 9 students place in CNA competition

The students from the Region 9 CNA program have recently returned from a three-day stay at the Samoset Resort, Rockport, where they participated in the Maine State HOSA Convention.

POLE, PADDLE, PAW, AND PRAY--Sisters (both in real life and in costume) Susan Brooks and Laurie Bailey took the prize for best costumes in last weekend's Pole, Paddle and Paw race at the Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center.

Pole, Paddle and Paw results

The 22nd annual April Fool's Pole, Paddle and Paw race was held on Saturday at Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center in Newry. The weather was perfect, the river was at a wonderful canoeing level, but the snow was, well, lacking. The field of 24 racers, paired in teams of two were given the option of either skiing or snowshoeing to the covered bridge. That first leg would have gone fairly well if some local "helpers" hadn't moved the trail markers, confusing the racers and sending them through deepening mud and forest thickets. Don Bennett's logging crew was surprised to see mud-spattered, lycra-legged waitresses and nuns in full habit wandering hurriedly about on their skid trails and log yards, and passing motorists wondered at costumed snowshoers running along the shoulder of the Sunday River Road.

The second leg of the race went well with all 12 teams managing to remain upright in their canoes despite having to negotiate "the swirling vortex of death" and an unannounced portage around a newly fallen tree. The only negative of the river section was one unhappy fly fisherman trying to enjoy a wilderness experience on the first day of open-water season. He would not relinquish his position in the middle of the river even to a pair of pleading nuns who blessed him as they passed.

The third leg of the race, normally the snowshoe portion, was routed through Coombs Village to find some deep-snow obstacles. There would have been more lost racers on that section were it not for Jennifer Pitcher, who was out raking her yard and offered directions to confused (and tired) souls.

Eventually, all racers found their way to the Cross Country Ski Center to finish where they began and to celebrate the season transition with hot dogs, soda, and a popular libation donated by neighbor Jette Black of Sunday River Brew Pub. All agreed that they had had a good time and that they would not soon forget the day.

When the scores were tallied (both team members' times are combined to determine the team score) the overall winners were Colin Witherill and Eric Fitz of Cumberland with a combined time of 94 minutes and 45 seconds. Complete results were:

Colin Witherill and Eric Fitz, Greeley High School, 94:45; Stanis Moody-Roberts and David Roberts, Cape Elizabeth, 96:10; Sarah Getchell and Marisa Sowles, Greeley High School, 107:68; John and Colin Reuter, Bethel, 107:68; Peter LeBourdais and Bill Heinz, Freeport, 2:02:27; Doug and Kevin Zinchuk, Bethel, 2:05:15; Susan Brooks and Laurie Bailey, Waterville/Andover, 2:08:36; Bernadette Martel and Todd Nichols, Colebrook, N.H., 2:15:17; Robin Zinchuk and Julia Reuter, Bethel, 2:33:04; Kendra Bavor and Sarah Luck, North Yarmouth/Portland, 2:33:34; Rachel Gormley and Tay Wiles, Greeley High School, 2:34:24; Eric and Jean Lancaster, Norridgewock, 3:07:17.

It was the unanimous decision of the judges that the award for best costumes should go to Susan Brooks and Laurie Bailey, the Praying Nuns. Adding to the popularity of the decision was a rumor that somewhere out on the trail the two nuns paused to offer celebration to an ancient lunar deity. Pictures of the ceremony are being sought by the ski center staff.

From the

White Mountain

National Forest

Forest supervisor, Donna Hepp, announced that the Notice of Intent, which officially starts the comment period for the revision of the Forest Plan, was published in the Federal Register on March 9. The comment period for the Notice of Intent runs from March 9 until May 9, 2000.

The Forest Plan sets management direction for the forest and prescribes what uses are allowed and where they may occur. The existing plan has guided management of the forest since 1986.

Hepp said, "New England is unique in the involvement of so many people in efforts such as forest planning. Public participation is vital as we craft a document that will guide management of this forest. We hope that everyone with an interest in how the White Mountain is managed will take this opportunity to work with us. There are a number of ways to get involved."

For example, request that you be placed on the Forest Plan revision mailing list; attend a planning meeting; visit www.fs.fed.us/r9/white; attend one of the following open houses to learn more: April 10, 1:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, Concord, N.H.; April 11, 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Radisson Hotel, Chelmsford, Mass.; April 12, 1 to 7 p.m. at the Rumney Town Hall, Rumney, N.H.; April 13, 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Evans Notch Ranger District Office, Bethel; April 13, 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Woodstock Town Hall, North Woodstock, N.H.; April 14, 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Saco Ranger District Office, Conway, N.H.; April 18, 1 to 7 p.m. at the Androscoggin Ranger District Office, Gorham, N.H.

Hepp continued, "The Notice of Intent contains a proposal of changes to be made in the current Forest Plan. We have been gathering public input since 1997 to help develop this proposal and look forward to hearing what people think about it."

GILMAN P. BEAN'S STORE at what was known as "Honest Corner" as it looked during the Bethel Centennial Celebration of 1896. This building burned in 1906 and was replaced by Daniel Hastings in 1910, now occupied by Wild River Realty. The building beside the Hastings Block was demolished in the 1970s. Beyond this is the Wiley Block currently being renovated by Scott and Jenna Smith. This photograph is one of thousands that can be found at the Bethel Historical Society, which also possesses an outstanding collection of manuscripts, books, documents, and artifacts relating to western Maine and northern New Hampshire. The society is currently raising funds for its Regional History Center on Broad Street and the 1821 O'Neil Robinson House, which now houses the museum shop, exhibit galleries, and offices. When this project is completed, improved storage space and greater access to collections as well as rooms devoted to educational activities, research, and traditional crafts will be provided. Once the center is fully operational it will offer an expanded series of lectures, special events, conferences, courses, seminars, and publications. To learn more about this project, call the society at 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910 or use the e-mail address history@bdc.bethel.me.us or visit the web site <http://orion.bdc.bethel.me.us/~history>.
